

Add to your business results up to 45%?

Are you aware that spending some small time and money can add to your business results up to 45%?

(the figure is taken from evaluation reports of improvements achieved in UNIDO industrial upgrading programmes. Here is link to the source http://win2biz.com/unido_sw/eng/SME-Prog-intro.htm)

Spending Time: establishing regular (monthly) business performance monitoring procedures at your enterprise.

Spending Money: acquiring simple UNIDO Pharos software for business performance management, measurement and benchmarking for personal use by senior management and its assistants.

Ether being owner or executive of a business or consultant such efforts bring new added value to business and empower continuous improvement, competitiveness, productivity and sustainability of businesses.

Look into the software and relevant best practices making it happen.

The UNIDO Pharos software provides simple means to establish business targets by using well known measures, presenting current results against targets in simple graphs and enterprise benchmarking reports. It helps tracing costs, overall business performance, quality in manufacturing and customer relations, improvement in competitiveness, product contribution and customer sales as well as manufacturing performance and major annual financial ratios.

The software is simple, easy in use and available under small fees acceptable to any enterprise. Its implementation in daily enterprise life for monitoring of business results requires small amount of data for updating; most of this data can be imported from enterprise accounting system.
